

How to garden in the nude

ON AIR: Eric Robson, Bob Flowerdew, Anne Swithinbank and Chris Beardshaw with allotment holder Arthur Scott

THIS week's Gardeners' Question Time on BBC Radio 4 comes from the Dauntsey Vale in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of Great Somerford's allotment site – almost certainly the oldest in the country.

The programme is hosted by Eric Robson, and the panel of experts including Chris Beardshaw, Bob Flowerdew and Anne Swithinbank will field questions from the audience, ranging from whether it's advisable to paint over a creeper to what gardening jobs might be tackled in the nude.

The programme can be heard tomorrow at 3pm and also on Sunday at 2pm.

The recording, which took place in Malmesbury Secondary School, made for a very entertaining evening, and over £400 was raised for village community projects.
